FLORAL DECORATIONS AT THE FAIR ACME OF LANDSCAPE GARDENER'S ART. >>

Ten Million Flowers Planted in Various Parts of the Grounds--Gardens Are Most Beautiful Ever Seen--Color Scheme Declared to Be Most Gorgeous Ever Designed --- Problem of Transplanting Trees Successfully Solved.

ARTISTIC BIT OF SCENERY IN THE FRENCH GARDEN.
Especially notable are the marble statues, without which no French ! French landscape is adopted originally and followed with such close attention to the landscape gardener's detail as has been followed at the World's Fair. Giant trees have been up-rooted and transplanted; far-spreading World's Fair. Giant trees have been uprooted and transplanted; far-spreading beds of flowers have been laid out, and where it was impossible for grass seed to grow, sod has been used. The one result of all this extensive programme is a vista of surprising beauty that will increase in effectiveness as the summer proceeds.

F. A. Kassier of Kansas City, the designer of the Kansas City system of parks and boulevards, has been toe designer of the Fair floral decorations. He has been working on the scheme for nearly three years, and the result is the triumph of art outdoors. He has planted various plants that will insure the beauty of the grounds throughout the summer season and into the fail. In fact, when the first fakes of snow begin to fall and the great Exposition lives only in history and memory, there will be beds of blooming flowers and long stretches of greenery on the grounds, and many of the trees will not have become sere and yellow.

Aside from the work of Mr. Kassier on Complete is the floral decoration of the World's Fair, and within a few weeks the grounds will be as a garden. Already the gardenlike appearance is noticeable in scores of places, with beds of blooming flowers, groups of greenery and trees in full leaf.

Never before in the world has there been so elaborate a plan of outdoor decoration adopted originally and followed with such There have been natural obstacles to overcome in gardening at the Fair grounds, Much of the ground has been graded so that the sirface earth has been

As a result of the use of these three the beds will be alive throughout the Exposition period and increasing in beauty with each passing (ay, until the coming of the cool nights of the autumn.

TRANSPLANTING A PROBLEM.

The deciduous trees are those that drop their leaves in the fall. These are the maple, the elm, the ash, the eak and similar trees, quite familiar to every schoolby. Mixed with these come the every green, that bear fast name from the fact that they never fade. These will give life to the visias throughout the year, as are also the vinea, while the grasses will carry greeness far into the autumnal months.
